

A Politician Never Lies

A certain politician was visiting a remote little rural town in Australia and, addressing a meeting of locals, asked them what his Government, if elected, could do for them.

"We have two big needs," said a spokesman for the townspeople.

"First, we have a hospital but no doctor."

The politician whipped out his mobile, spoke for a while and then said, "I have sorted that out. A doctor will arrive here the day after we win Government. Now, what is your other need?"

The townspeople replied as one:

"We have no mobile phone reception in this town".
