

A UNIVERSITY EDUCATION

I was buying mangoes at the junction, and whilst waiting for change I saw an older woman with a little child.

The child was walking a bit faster than the woman, and the woman shouted; 'Degree, wait for me!'

I was amazed hearing that name. So to satisfy my curiosity, I walked closer to the woman and asked, 'Madam, why do you call this child Degree?'

The woman laughed and said, 'I sent her mother to university, and this is what she brought home!'
